The bemocratic Congressional Convention.

The largest delegate convention that ever assembled in the Second Fourgessional district was that which assembled at Music Hall this forenoon. Not only every county but almost every township in the district, was represented by the stanch and sterling bemocracy; and to say that all were minated by a spirit of conciliation, compromise and a general desire to sink all personal consideration for the good of the cause, would but poorly express the sentiment which prevailed.

As will be seen by the proceedings, to which we have barely time to allude, the floor, M. C. Kerr was nonlineded for re-election by acclamation, the gentleman who had been spoken of as competitors for the nontination, Messis, Wolfe, Sherrod and Dumban, withdrawing their names in short, but stirring and patriotic speeches—the two former in person, and the latter by flow, Jason B. -When Calllentt, the swindling revenue collector, of Brooklyn, was undergoing the tonsorial process of initiation in the New York State prison, he told the attendants that he never did any hard work, and repuested that he might be put to some light employment. The case is not a novel one. Very few office-holders ever did any hard work, inlice-holding, maler the existing political regime in this country, is, to men like Callicott, the easiest thing in nature.

-The limit is, by women of taste, no longer piled up to steeple over tail gentlemen's bearers; the Louis XV, head-dress, not fite distemple, is in tavor agond. It is ruised on the temples and falls in light earls and braids without inordinate budge behind. Lovely tower garlands, made of large roses, camolas, or, what is preferred, of betties and fruit, are now adopted instead of gold rims, for all the world list were circles. The garlands most admired last week were worn, one by the buchesse de Monchy at a charity concert organized by Baroniess Bendyeau, and the other by M'me de Monstier, the wife of the uninister. I am unazed by the orient of invectives by which I am unazed by the offerned of the whole alleged as fact is falsehood out of the whole cloth. M. J. MAVITY,

BY The senience of Calicot was as severe as the law allowed Imprisonment for two years and a fine of storon. Like all criminals, Calleot avowed himself the victim of circomstances, reiterated his immocence and denies all intent of defrauding the Government, one million four humbred thousand dollars, ite said, had passed through its hands in behalf of the Government, all of which was faithfully accounted for, and he had left his office a poorer man than he entered it. I this be so, Calleot must be an unfortunate victim of his associates, for, under his adhebstration of the dottes of fhe office of collector, corruption has grown like a ford weed and frough has rioted. If Greeley and the rest of his firemis and larekers have so successfully pocketed all the gains of the whise, of the evibbnee and verifier, that Calleot's shewdness is not equal to his vifishny. It is at a very dirty pleee of Radical rascality, which, as a court of law and not a Congressional or wisted upon the very level of the hovestigathon, has found its appropriate reward. It is a pity that some portion of the penalty cannot be visited upon the venture reward. It is a pity that some portion of the penalty cannot be visited upon the venture of the histography.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE BEMOGRAT, Thursday Evening, June 11, 188.

We have no change whatever to note in the local money market. The supply is in excess of the demand, and, as a consequence, quiet relays in financial circles. In all the Eastern markets there is a perfect plethora of money, and there is considerable difficulty experienced by capitalists in making safe and protifiable hypshuments.

Exchange is quiet and steady at rates that have ruled for the past two weeks.
